

Mapping Trophies

To encourage the production of high quality maps the Map Group on behalf of British Orienteering awards a number of trophies to encourage high standards of mapping and related activities.

Chichester Trophy

The Chichester Trophy was donated by the Honorary President of the British Orienteering Federation in 1971, Sir Francis Chichester. The Trophy consists of the binnacle compass used on Sir Francis' 'round the world' yacht, Gipsy Moth V, mounted on a wooden plinth.

The Trophy was first awarded in 1971 to Robin Harvey and Sue Bone (who were to later marry and form their own mapping company) for their map of Leith Hill. It was originally awarded for the Best Map produced in a single year though later it was awarded for multiple maps or contribution to mapping.

In 1985, with the introduction of the 'Bonington Trophy', the 'Chichester Trophy' reverted to the original concept of the best map produced by an amateur mapper.

Silva Trophy for Professional Maps

With the high standard of professionally surveyed and drawn orienteering maps being produced in Britain, the British Orienteering Map Group decided, in 1992, that a new trophy should be awarded in recognition of these mapping companies. The Map Group annually awards the 'Silva Trophy' to the best professionally produced map.

This trophy, sponsored by Silva U.K.Ltd. is made from Stourbridge crystal. This irregular shape, called cullet in the trade, is formed when the unused crystal cools. The base was made by Mike Baggott of Harlequins from English elm and the solid silver plate was purchased from a bullion supplier in Birmingham's Jewellery Quarter and engraved nearby.
